

OLD MEETS NEW

Sometimes all we need is a staycation to get some reprieve from our oft-hectic lives. Our hotel of choice is the new boutique-sized Naumi Liora located in the hip enclave that is Keong Saik Road, and surrounded by post-war colonial buildings, gourmet coffee joints and watering holes. Designed by Gaurang Khemka, founder of Singapore-based, award-winning design firm URBNarc, the hotel is charmingly traditional yet contemporary. The '20s Peranakan-style building has its original timber flooring, French-style windows and five-foot-way all retained, while the rooms boast stylish touches such as amenities from New York-brand C.O Bigelow and Nespresso machines (in selected rooms). Choose the Liora Porch room (only 13 available) as it has a lovely garden porch overlooking Duxton Plain Park. And don't forget to utilise the personal butler service, a thoughtful service offered to all guests. Visit www.naumiliora.com
